

Summary of Alternatives and the Energy Market

When we opened our website, there was not much factual analysis out there about renewable alternatives. However, the fast pace of change in the field, makes it difficult for us to invest enough time to adequately cover the topic.

We now find that renewables are much better addressed on many other websites than when we opened our website. Thus, for now, we will leave this discussion to others.

Instead of energy analysis, we are putting our efforts into converting CO₂ into fuels via our Windfuels and CARMA processes. We are making steady progress, and we'll continue to update our progress reports periodically.

